MONDAY
APRIL 20, 1953

I went to our local office in Luxembourg and E. and I lunched with Jean Monnet at the Golf Club. Afterwards we went to the British Delegation headquarters and met their personnel.

Then we adjourned across the street with Sir Cecil Weir and Mr. and Mrs. Marjoribanks for tea.

Following that, I visited Jean at the High Authority headquarters and had a talk with various of its members.

We left on the night train for Paris. It is quite a gruelling journey.
